IT'S ALL NATURE

Occasionally you might receive some of our Aloe Vera Gel that is pink. This DOES NOT affect the healing properties of the Gel. This is the nature of the Aloe Vera Gel and plant. The same as the leaves on the trees turn red in the fall of the year. When the Gel thaws it often changes back to a clear color.

Recently here, in the subtropics, we had summer temperatures, 90-95 for weeks on end, then suddenly we received an unexpected cool spell down in the 40's for a few nights and it is still in the upper 50's to low 60's at night now. This temperature change can trigger nature in the plants to suddenly adjust their chemistry.

Years ago, I had to cut a load of Aloe Vera Leaves to manufacture our Aloe #1 Youth-Derm Ointment. Never realizing that we had a little frost the previous night. The ointment was a beautiful pink and in testing on sunburns and burns, it was highly effective. We checked the Aloe plants and found the Gel in the leaves a beautiful cherry red! Three days later all the Aloe Gel was back to clear color.

So please drink this naturally beautiful colored Gel with confidence and if you have any further questions or concerns, please don't hesitate to call us!

Thank you!
